Last Chances to See Pictures.

To-night and to-morrow night will close the free exhibition of the moving picture scenes at Forest Hill Park. With the exception of one night, when the weather did not permit, there have been crowds at the beautiful park across the James. The ride from Richmond to Forest Hill sparticularly pleasant on warm nights, and with the added attraction of the wonderful moving picture machines, without added cost, the summer stay-nthomes are finding plenty of means of enjoyment these nights.

After to-morrow night the pictures will be shown at Westhampton Park, a complete new set being secured from the manufacturers in New York. The scenes this week are very good, and they range from the melodramatic to the comic. Plenty of cars are operated to the parks where the pictures are shown, so that there is no unnecessary crowding.

BETTER GAS FOR CITY NOW IN PROSPECT

To Test Samples of Coal From Various Mines Before Awarding Contract.

Awarding Contract.

The Committee on Gas last night indicated its determination to have good gas for the city, so far as that committee could produce such results. This was shown when the question of letting out the contracts for gas coal came up. There were nine bids, with varying prices, After a long discussion, in which most of the committeemen took part, and in which Messrs Gunst and Lynch figured consplicuously, the committee decided to give all the bidders for the contract the same chances, regardless of the price of their bid, and the result was that several of the bidders will submit samples of their coal to, the superintendent of the works, with the understanding that the most productive coal would be the one taken, regardless of the price. Those who will submit their samples are the Kanawha Fuel Company, John J. Hesser and Company and the Chesapeake and Ohio Coal and Coke Company. Pending this test, the present contractors, who also have a bid before the committee, will furnish the necessary coal to keep the works busy. The present contractors are the Chesapeake and Ohio Coal Agency. The fest will be strengthened by the the Chesapeake and Ohio Coal Agency Company.

The test will be strengthened by the work of the city chemist, Dr. Whitfield, who will analyze the various samples as they are sent to the gus works.

The committee will do the best thing for the city in the premises, and think the plan they have devised will result in the best results for the city, and believe that by the time the days begin to lengthen and gas is in greater demand, the supply will be better than ever.

At the next meeting of the City Council, Mr. Garber, of the committee, will advocate the appropriation of sufficient funds to construct the connecting pipe between the gas plant and the gas holder now being creected in the West End. The cost will approximately reach $88,000.

now being erected in the West End. The cost will approximately reach $38,000.

Some members of the Council favor a delay in this appropriation, pending the consideration of a plan to crect a new gas plant in the West End and near the gas holder.

Treat Again Marshal.

Treat Again Marshal.

In the presence of a few officials of the court and the marshal's office. Mr. Morgan Treat was yesterday formally sworn in as marshal of the United States for the Easters. District of Virginia, before Clerk Joseph P. Brady, of the United States Circuit Court, for his third term. The ceremony was marked by democratic simplicity, as Mr. Treat himself described it, being merely the taking of the oath of office. When reminded that the term democratic simplicity might be misconstrued by some of the faithful, who despise everything Democratic, Mr. Treat remarked: "They will know before very long what I am."

The ceremony was one peculiarly interesting to the marshal, for it meant yindication, with a large V. and four years more in the office, a rather pleasing experience after having been summarily removed by the very President who has just reappointed him to the position.

Young Negress Arrested for Attempted Infanticide-Other Manchester News.

Manchester Bureau, Times-Dispatch, No. 1102 Hull Street. Cinders will be placed on almost every sidewalk in Manchester where pavements are lacking. The Street Committee in called session last night passed resolutions instructing the city engineer to employ the city carts in hauling cinders to the different parts of the city that pedestrians might have an easier time going to and from their residences. There were no contracts awarded, because of the fact that the members of the committee did not know the exact amount

At Fourteenth and Perry Streets, the car tracks are above the level of the street, and as a result water banks to the street, and as a result water banks to the sidewalk there when it rains. PERKINS.—Died, May 24, 1995, at the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. V. K. Bowles, near Dabney's, Louisa county, Va., Lieutenant Z. W. PERKINS, in the seventy-third year of his age. Mr. Perkins was a native of Louisa county and was an old Confederate soldier, following the boys in gray for four long years, in which struggle he received quite a severe wound, which doubtless shortened his days on earth. He was a gallant soldier. Though plain and unassuming, every inch of him was true and noble. He was proud of the lately erected monument at Louisa, Va., to time memory of the old Confederates. In the beautiful Christian life he had led for many years he has erected to his memory a monument far grander, nobler and more durable than any earthly hand can erect; a monument whose beauty no sun's rays can tarnish nor rainferops cause to crimble. Let us so live as to meet him in the bright and beautiful ZaCHARIAS.—Died, at his residence, 142

AND INFECTION DR. DANIEL GOES TO GRAND JURY

Physician Charged With Violating Postal Laws Held for Further Examination.

SAID HE WAS WOMAN'S AGENT

This the Plea of Specialist in His Own Defense.

The case of the United States vs. J.

Bills Daniel, a practicing physician of this city, charged with sending unmailable matter through the United States mails in violation of the statute, which was begun last week before United States Commissioner Joseph P. Prady, was concluded yesterday, the accused being held for the grand jury of the District Court in $1,000 ball bond, which was readily given. The case before the commissioner was simply one to show probable cause of guilt. The testimony had all been heard last Friday, the case being adjourned in order to give the district attorney a chance to appear and pass upon questions of law raised by defendant's counsel, Mr. A. E. Cohen, of this city. At a hearing yesterday the government was represented by Assistant District Attorney Robert H. Talley, while ernment was represented by Assistant District Attorney Robert H. Talley, while Mr. Cohen again appeared for the defendant.

The defense raised the point that the matter alleged to have been mailed was sent to a fluttious person, and that a stamp was enclosed as an inducement to violation of the law, and that under these circumstances no offense had been committed. He cited a decision of a court to sustain his contention. Mr. Talley, for the government, contended that the use of decoy letters and fluttious names was necessary to detect crime, and has been repeatedly so held by the highest courts. He argued that the defendant had admitted the offense charged in the warrant, and that there was nothing to do but to hold him for grand jury action. This course was accordingly taken by This course was accordingly taken by Unlawful Use.

Dr. Daniel was charged with sending out by mail advertisements of a device, the use of which is unlawful, and with having in such mailed matter suggested its unlawful use. The defendant admitted mailing the literature and the device, but claimed he was acting as agent for a young woman formerly employed by him as nurse, and who owned the pany. It was mailed from his sanitarium.

pany. It was mailed from his sanitarium. It is probable that the nurse will be involved in the proceeding, either as witness or as co-defendant.

The penalty for the offense is from 11 to $5,000 maximum fine, and from one day to five years' imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the judge of the trial court.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

WOODSTOCK, VA., June I.—The reunion of Independent Order of Odd-Follows of the Valley under the auspices of the lodges of Shenandoah county occurred at Mount Jackson today. There were about fifteen hundred present. Dr. C. A. R. Moore, Mayor of Mount Jackson, made the address of welcome. This was followed by a speech of Rev. E. E. Northern, past grand master of Winchester, upon the subject of the origin and growth of the Independent Order of Odd-Fellows.

Mr. F. P. Brumback, of Woodstock, in a fitting manner introduced the orator of the day, His Excellency, Governor A. J. Montague, who made a splendid speech on Odd-Fellowship, which was enthusiastically received by all who were present.

The reunion was well attended and lasting impressions made to the benefit of the order, NO GLOSS CARRIAGE PAINT MADE NO GLOSS CARRIAGE PAINT MADE
